Report: IRS eyes Schmidt, Rose, others

Staff and Wire Reports

Several retired baseball stars — including former Phillies stars — Mike Schmidt and Pete Rose — might be indicted or hit with civil fines by the Internal Revenue Service for failure to report income received for signing autographs, the New York Daily News reported yesterday.

The newspaper said its story was based on a confidential source ant GM Frank Robinson when his contract expires Dec. 31. Robinson, 60, has spent 19 years in the organization as a player, manager and executive.

■ Former Phillies Kim Batiste was selected by San Francisco in the annual major league draft.

■ The St. Louis Cardinals have offered a multiyear contract to free-agent second baseman Craig Biggio, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

nator at the University of Oregon, died in his sleep Sunday night. The cause of death was not immediately known, but he was not believed to have been ill.

■ Ohio State's Eddie George was chosen as winner of the Doak Walker Award as the nation's top college running back.

■ Louisiana Tech fired head coach Joe Raymond Peace and replaced him with offensive coordinator
